I support H.R. 4038 and I support demanding accountability from the cabinet departments. I urge my colleagues to do the same.

HONORING RAUL QUEZADA

HON. J. LUIS CORREA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 26, 2017

Mr. CORREA. Mr. Speaker, I would like to honor a public servant in my community, Raul Quezada. Mr. Quezada is the first Latino to be named the Chief of Police in the city of Anaheim. Prior to transferring to Anaheim in 1996, Mr. Quezada worked at the Los Angeles Police Department for three years. Mr. Quezada, took over as the Acting Police Chief in May of 2013 and was then named Police Chief in December 2013. His appointment took place after a time of civil unrest and riots following a series of fatal police shootings in 2012. He served as the Police Chief of Anaheim for nearly four years.

While actively participating in community engagement, he prioritized maintaining safety standards and keeping law and order. He worked relentlessly to improve the way of life in Anaheim and to have a positive influence in the community of Anaheim. Mr. Quezada created a youth program named the Public Safety Career Pipeline. This was an elective class held at Sycamore Junior High, that encouraged youth to consider a career in law enforcement. Mr. Quezada met with different community members regularly. Working to assure all residents and communities that hate crimes would not be tolerated, Mr. Quezada encouraged residents to take a more active role in the community.

Mr. Quezada introduced new and innovative methods and the use of technology in the police department. In 2015, he made Anaheim one of the first cities anywhere to equip its entire police force with body cameras. He also took the initiative to establish a neighborhood advisory council.

Mr. Quezada has recently retired as the Anaheim Police Chief. The Mayor of Anaheim, Tom Tait, who strongly supports Mr. Quezada, said in a statement that Quezada had "overseen critical cultural and operational changes that have brought the department closer to those it serves." As a community leader, he helped rebuild community trust and is committed to implementing positive approaches to the law for the betterment of the community.

IN RECOGNITION OF EASTSIDE BABY CORNER

HON. DAVID G. REICHERT

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 26, 2017

Mr. REICHERT. Mr. Speaker, for over two decades, Eastside Baby Corner (EBC) in Issaquah, Washington has provided invaluable services to families in need throughout the surrounding community. EBC founder, Karen Ridlon, first saw the need for a nonprofit committed to providing families with resources for babies through her work as a local nurse practitioner. Countless newborn babies in her practice left the hospital to go to homes that did not have adequate food, clothing, sanitary care products, and safety equipment.

What began as a small collection of resources collected in Ms. Ridlon's dining room has grown into an organization that serves over 800 children each week and has filled over 500,000 orders of baby essentials. Nonprofits similar to EBC have filled important needs within communities across America. In 2016 alone, more than 300 nonprofit diaper banks and diaper pantries that are members of the National Diaper Bank Network across 46 States distributed over 52,000,000 donated diapers, helping ensure that more than 278,000 children had the diapers they needed.

In light of Diaper Awareness Week last month, I visited EBC, toured the warehouse, and met with some of its committed volunteers. I applaud EBC and other members of the National Diaper Bank Network for the critical work they do to provide families with the infant essentials they need and better ensure that babies have a healthy start to life.

HONORING THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE WOODBERRY FOREST SCHOOL SPORTS CAMP

HON. THOMAS A. GARRETT, JR.

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 26, 2017

Mr. GARRETT. Mr. Speaker, invested in developing young men of sterling character who played by the rules and exhibited good sportsmanship, the Woodberry Forest School's Head Football Coach and Athletics Director Red Caughron and his wife Cathy founded the Woodberry Forest School Sports Camp, in 1967, on the philosophy, "that a man must build himself mentally, physically, and socially each day to be well-rounded . . . by one philosophy, the conviction that the primary value of sports is their contribution to a boy's moral and physical growth."

Under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Caughron and eight counselors, the first session of the Woodberry Forest School Sports Camp had forty-two campers who practiced and competed in a wide range of team sports.

In the twenty-five years successive years, Mr. and Mrs. Caughron and the camp's staff developed a series of programs that instilled the value of teamwork in young men age eleven to fourteen, and provided specialized instruction in the sports in which each camper excelled at individually.

Following Mr. and Mrs. Caughron's retirement from the day-to-day operations of the Woodberry Forest School Sports Camp, each of the succeeding camp directors; Richard "Dick" Glover; Bill and Debbie Davis; Richard Wright; Clint and Elaine Alexander; Amy Blundin, Matt Blundin, and Frazier Stowers; have worked with hundreds of camp counselors; nearly all of whom have been students, alumni, or faculty members of Woodberry Forest School to grow the program while maintaining the camp's core values.

During the Woodberry Forest School Sports Camp's fifty-year history, hundreds of campers have gone on to become students and then graduates of the Woodberry Forest School, and today, I would like to pay tribute to, and show my gratitude for Red and Cathy Caughron, the Woodberry Forest School Sports Camp's directors, counselors and the thousands of campers whose lives have been enriched by the selfless dedication that Mr. and Mrs. Caughron exhibited by founding Woodberry Forest School Sports Camp, fifty years ago, this year.

CONGRESSIONAL SUBPOENA COMPLIANCE AND ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2017

SPEECH OF

HON. HENRY C. "HANK" JOHNSON, JR.

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, October 23, 2017

Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4010, the Congressional Subpoena Compliance and Enforcement Act. This legislation allows the House of Representatives to enforce congressional subpoenas in federal court. Too often, congressional subpoenas are flouted because they lack enforcement mechanisms. Under current law, Congress must refer subpoenas to the appropriate United States attorney for enforcement. Typically, this United States attorney is appointed by the same administration over which Congress seeks to exert its oversight authority.

H.R. 4010 creates a clear set of enforcement mechanisms surrounding the congressional subpoena power. Although congressional subpoenas have been used by Congress and its committees for many years, there is currently no law requiring compliance. This legislation requires that recipients of congressional subpoenas either comply or provide the committee with an explanation of the legal privilege that allows them to resist. This bill would also provide enforcement cases with an expedited review at the federal court level. Alternatively, committees can request that the enforcement case be heard by a district court panel of three judges with the option to appeal to the Supreme Court. Codifying these enforcement measures will provide Congress and its committees with a clear set of expectations for how to present and enforce subpoenas.

In these especially political times, checks and balances have never been more important. Congress must fully utilize its constitutional right to hold hearings and investigate members of the federal government, and we need tools to enforce these investigations if people refuse to comply. As a member of the Judiciary Committee, I stand for transparency and honesty in our government, and as a Congress we have the duty to seek out both for our constituents. H.R. 4010 gives Congress the tools it needs to demand that people attempting to shroud and hide the truth reveal it, and I urge my fellow members to stand with me and support the Congressional Subpoena Compliance and Enforcement Act.
